Dive Cleanup Report

By: Jill Mashburn

We had a blast and the lake got a face lift! Not that you can see the difference that we made on the bottom of the lake, but the fish know. It was fun on land and in the lake on Saturday, August 11th. We had 12 divers in the water and seven people on shore, in addition to our 'ship-to-shore' staff and our Divemasters.

Altogether, we got five or six huge bags of trash, several small bags, five anchors, a tire, and the remains of a lawn chair. We had the divers in teams and each was briefed by Chris Hellyer and Terry, our Instructor and Divemaster for the day. We followed the rules for safety and fun. The divers only went 30' deep to find all this trash; we were barricaded in by the Coast Guard Auxiliary and three other boats belonging to members, and friends Frank Mayo and Janet McCully stayed on the boats to maintain our protection. The Coast Guard also had a man on a PWC going out to meet boats that were coming too close to our area. We had diver-down flags and signs (explaining what that means) on two of the boats to try and educate the masses.

A picnic for the clean up participants went off very well, thanks to our grillmaster Wes Gonzales, and we had enough food to feed a few dozen hungry Girl Scouts that were cleaning the shore near our dive site. (Man, those girls can eat, they put some of our men to shame!)

Aquarius Habitat

A note from Cathy Sakas, Gray's Reef NMS

Hello, Hello!

I am off to Key Largo to become an aquanaut, and if all goes well with training, I will enter the Aquarius Habitat on September 10th and stay until the morning of September 19th. I thought you would want to check out the web site for information about this incredible mission and to see me on the web! There will be a live video feed from Aquarius to the web site as of the 10th. Information about the mission and the aquanauts (that would be me and three other scientists and two technicians) are up on the web now. When I see you next I just may have grown gills!

On the web, check out:

Malaysia to Instituto Ecoplan's habitat restoration project in Brazil! More locally, the students of The Walker School in Atlanta built Reef Balls at their school and deployed them off the coast of St. Simons Island, Georgia.

This month, the Reef Ball Foundation is hosting a "Polo Ball Benefit" which combines a polo match and a picnic style event, so feel free to bring your lawn chairs and coolers! This event will be hosted at Chukkar Farm (770-664-1533) in Alpharetta, Georgia on Sunday, September 23rd, 2001 at 2:00 pm. Some food and drinks will be provided, however, you can bring your own as a picnic—which is what we're planning to do! The cost to enter (after all, this is a benefit event!) is only $10 per person, and for those who have never seen a Polo Match—this is a great opportunity!

To learn more about Reef Balls and the Foundation's worldwide efforts, check out their website at www.reefball.org. (770-752-0202) ❁

Divemaster's Corner

By: Rick McCully, PADI Divemaster

Just when some of us Reef Dwellers begin to feel land-locked and hear as others describe exotic diving adventures to distant vistas, we realize there is some darn good diving fairly close to home:

- ❁ Panama City, Florida and the Aqua-Nut Charter operation hosted us in both June and October and is only a 5½ hour drive south.
- ❁ Our "Georgia's own" beautiful and laid-back Gray's Reef off Sapelo Island, GA and Pot Luck Charters is only 4 hours away.
- ❁ The many fresh water springs, caverns, and caves of North Florida with wonderful camping and diving opportunities, such as Vortex Springs and Ginnie Springs, to name a couple, are a straight shot south about 4½ hours away.
- ❁ And our upcoming dive with the dolphins trip to Grand Bahama Island, Oct. 18-22, is a mere 1¼ hour inexpensive flight on Air-Tran. Call trip chairman Bill Gray (770-789-0524) if you are interested in a great diving deal to the beautiful Bahamas.
- ❁ And, as they say, "nothin' could be finer" than the wreck diving off the capes of North Carolina, with sunken U-boats, etc. to explore! I will be organizing a trip off Morehead City, NC in the Spring...more on that later.

So, fellow Reef Dwellers, we can easily drive or fly to nearby dive destinations, keep up our skills, have fun, keep the costs down, and enjoy our wonderful sport!

Be safe, and enjoy the rest of the Summer! ❁

❗ Did you know...?

Over 99% of all lobsters die within a few weeks of hatching!

The odds are 10,000-to-1 against any lobster living long enough to be eaten by man!

Only 1 in 4 million lobsters are blue!
(the rest are really happy.)

If so, please contact one of your Steering Committee Members or send an email to: info@reefdwellers.com

Cocktail Cove Dive Cleanup Report (Continued from page 1)

Prizes were given out for The Most Trash found—Rich Kale and Wayne Austin each won a $40 gift certificate for that honor. The second place for Most Trash went to the father and son team of Jim and Jason Robertson—They each received $35 gift certificates. The prize for the Most Unique Trash went to Tom & Ginny Peary for finding the tire from a boat trailer in the middle of the lake, and for that they received a $60 gift certificate. These gift certificates were paid for by a portion of the grant from PADI's Project AWARE, and are honored at the following dive stores: Diving World USA, Garrard Dive Educators, S&S Undersea Adventures, and The Dive Shop IV.

Other dive teams and shore help participating were: John Law and Gary Gutierrez (a local diver that came to assist), Jim Sulsona, Bill Mashburn, Bill Gray and Maryellen Farquhar. The shore team that brought in the most trash was Stacy Gandel and her friends Diana and Mike. We also had Wes Gonzales and Gail Guthrie on shore. Robin Sulsona helped on shore to get trash out of the transport vessel and Jill Mashburn talking to the press and also helping to get trash from the transport vessel. Our star of the day was Rick McCully who volunteered to pick up the trash from the divers in the lake and bring it to shore. We really made a mess of his dinghy but we couldn't have run such a smooth operation without him!

And to think this all started back in April with the help of Anna Watkins when we wrote the proposal to see if Project AWARE would sponsor our clean up!

Thanks to everyone that helped!!! We'll make an even bigger splash next year! -Jill Mashburn, events coordinator
